GIRL, 9, DIES OF GUN WOUND INFLICTED BY HER BROTHER, 14

Mary Maggiori, of "Chicken Foot," Loses Brave Battle for Life in Shooting

LAD IS HELD UNDER BAIL

Salvatore Will Have to Face Trial at Co. Court on Charge of Involuntary Manslaughter

A 14-year-old Bristol Township boy will have to face trial on the charge of involuntary manslaughter following the death of his 9-year-old sister, whom he accidentally shot on August 26th, while attempting to kill a rat with his father's shotgun.

The lad, Salvatore Maggiori, is now under $500 bail to await the action of the coroner of Bucks county.

Salvatore's sister, Mary, on the evening of August 26th, sat with her mother in the yard of their home at "Chicken Foot," six miles west of here. They were paring apples for jelly.

Her father was working in the tomato patch and Salvatore, seeing a rat run across the yard, went into the house and grabbed his father's shotgun. He came out of the doorway of the home, and pointing the gun at the rat, fired. It is believed that the gun slipped from his grasp with the pulling of the trigger and the shot struck Mary in the right breast.

The child was rushed to the Harrison Hospital here by neighbors and for a time it was thought that she was going to survive. Death occurred Saturday afternoon at about 2 o'clock.

On the night of the shooting, State police and County Detective Anthony Russo went to the Maggiori farm to probe the affair. Their attention was attracted by the running of a motor in an automobile standing a short distance from the house. They looked into the car and there found cans of alcohol. Further search revealed a large still in operation in the barn.

Philip Maggiori, the father of the two children, figuring in the shooting affair, was arrested. The still was dismantled and Maggiori was given a trial for manufacturing liquor, but due to a lack of evidence he was discharged. He produced a lease which showed that he rented the house on the place but none of the other buildings.

Woman Temperance Speaker Delivers Address Here

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, the "Georgia Cyclone," and president of the Georgia State W. C. T. U., gave a stirring address in the First Baptist Church, here, last evening, speaking before a congregation of 250 people.

The well-known woman orator brought the cause of prohibition before the assemblage, stressing the fact that Christians should have their "joins girt about with truth."

The endurance of the Constitution of the United States was referred to, which great masterpiece even Washington and Jefferson at times despaired of ever surviving.

The speaker stated that more success has been met with by the Eighteenth amendment than the majority of people give credit for.

The splendid message was fittingly ended with the verses of Longfellow's "Ship of State."

HULMEVILLE

The Bible story of Ruth was presented last evening in the Methodist Church, being under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Foster and Dorothy Everitt, delegates from the Epworth League to the institute at Collegeville in August. Institute echoes were given and then the short play with the following participants: Ruth, Meta Claus; Naomi, Margaret Claus; Orpah, Helen, Helen Woolman; Boaz, Kimbal Faust; a kinsman from Boaz, Edwin Webster; townsmen and reapers, Margaret and Ethel Vornhold, Kathryn and Jean Halk, Grace Everitt, Sidney Buckman, James Keen, Robert Corigan, Robert McCarthy; "Buddy" Halk.

Ladies' night will be observed by Neshamony Lodge, 422, I. O. O. F., Friday night at its headquarters, when a program of entertainment will be provided.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hopkins, Pennsylvania avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hopkins and children, of Norwood, were entertained Sunday.

Miss Myrtle Egly, of Lincoln avenue, and Miss Marie Hanson, of Main street, were entertained over Saturday and Sunday by the latter's mother in Philadelphia.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION ARRANGED BY SOVIETS

Plan Extension So That All Children Will Have Seven Years of Study

AND MILITARY TRAINING

By Harriet G. Deuss

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 8.—Not a stone of the Czarist school system has been left standing, A. S. Bubnov, new Soviet Commissar of Education, stated to I. N. S. in an interview explaining the steps by which the Soviets have built up an entirely new system prepared this year to meet the colossal demands of three years compulsory education for 16 million children, eight to ten years old. Plans are to extend the compulsory term yearly until in 1935-36 all children in the union will be given a complete seven-year elementary education.

M. Bubnov is about 40 years of age, tall and slim, with a decided military bearing. He was dressed in a semi-military uniform—khaki colored Russian blouse, buttoned close to the throat, entirely without ornament, khaki breeches and high boots. He spoke Russian but evidently understands English well, since he answered several questions put to him in English without the services of the interpreter.

The primary task for these new schools, said M. Bubnov, is to prepare workers for socialist construction. Education will be built on a real scientific basis, "free from religion, mysticism and metaphysical trash." There will be no distinct anti-religious instruction, but the fact that the cornerstone of the school system is materialistic science is assumed by the department of education as sufficient to combat any tendency toward religious beliefs in the children.

Military training, however, will play a large part in the school life of the new Soviet youth. These children are taught to expect that they will have to fight to protect the socialist state from foreign invasion.

They are taught to hate all foreign capitalists and to be prepared to aid the workers of all countries in the world revolution. Military drill and the elements of military tactics will be taught beginning with the nine-year olds, boys and girls alike. In the first year they will have physical training which will prepare them for drill. Sports and physical education of all kinds will be encouraged, not for sport's sake, but as an aid to the training of class-conscious soldiers.

Soviet schools have been swept clean of all the old methods of formal education, with the result that in many respects Russia will have the most modern schools in the world. All training will bear a distinct relation to the life of the community, and will be according to the "project" system. Modern scientific agriculture and the practical problems of large scale collectivized agriculture will be the basis of education in the village schools, and the city schools will have a definite relation to the factories.

Civics has taken the place of history in the curriculum a civic based on a study of the struggle of the peasants to gain control of the land, of the workers to become masters of the factory. The children will not be forced to learn the dates of battles and the reigns of the various Czars. They will learn that the Czars were the oppressors of the workers and peasants, and the steps in the struggle to throw off this yoke of oppression will be all the history they need to bother with. ## Miss Sara D. Weissblatt Weds S. J. Savitz, of Phila.

An interesting wedding occurred yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, when Miss Sara D. Weissblatt, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weissblatt, of 302 Jefferson avenue, became the bride of S. J. Savitz, of Oak Lane.

The marriage took place in a beautiful setting of palms and autumn flowers at the Hotel Majestic, Broad street, Philadelphia. Rabbi Matthew S. Rosen, of Philadelphia, officiated.

The couple was unattended.

The bride wore a handsome Vivonet model of beige crepe, made with a high waist line, diagonal low neck and long sleeves shirred at the wrists. The skirt fell softly to points front and back. Her hat was an Agnes model of close-fitting brown felt. She also wore long beige toned doekskin gloves, brown kid opera pumps and beige-toned stockings and a corsage of small yellow rose buds.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Frank Weissblatt was attired in a beautiful gown of black velvet, the waist of which was close fitting and had a V-neck and the skirt fell into soft folds. She wore a close fitting black felt hat, black suede slippers, beige-toned stockings, long white kid gloves and a corsage of orchids.

Following the ceremony dinner was served to the bride and groom and their immediate families at the hotel. Covers were laid for forty.

Mr. and Mrs. Savitz have left for an extended honeymoon tour, and upon their return will be at home to their friends after October 5th at Wayne Manor, Germantown.

The bride traveled in a black toned ensemble of heavy crepe trimmed with black galay, a close fitting black felt hat, white kid gloves, black kid opera pumps and brown chiffon stockings.

Mrs. Savitz was born in Bristol, and is a member of a wide circle of friends here. She was graduated from Bristol High School in the class of 1926 and also attended Peirce Business College, Philadelphia.

Mr. Savitz is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

Previous to the wedding numerous social affairs were given in honor of the happy couple by friends and relatives in Chestnut Hill, Stonehurst, Oak Lane, Lansdowne and Philadelphia.

FLOWER EXHIBITION WILL ATTRACT MANY

Doylestown Nature Club Arranging for Sixth Annual Affair

OPENS NEXT SATURDAY

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 8.—One of the many features that will be outstanding at the annual garden and flower show sponsored by the Doylestown Nature Club this year in the Sixth Regiment Armory next Saturday, September 13, will be the miniature garden entered by the little gardens committee of the club.

According to Mrs. Hilborn Darlington, general chairman of the show this year, there will be a miniature garden fifteen feet square with an attractive background of canvas on which John Lear has painted a house. There will be a picket fence surrounding the garden, the fence being designed by Mrs. Charles Smith, of Prospectville.

Miss Gertrude Shearer is taking an active part in the booth where amateur garden books will be sold during the show, and Mrs. George S. Hotchkiss will have charge of an exhibition that has been secured by Mrs. William R. Mercer, of "Aldie," from Connecticut, that shows in a most impressive way the great advantage of keeping America clean of the billboard and outdoor advertising signs that mar the attractiveness of many of the most beautiful sections of the country.

From 8.30 to 9 p. m. on the day of the show there will be three short talks. Miss Mary Paxon, of Maple avenue, will speak on "Things That Everyone Can Make Out of Concrete for the Garden." Herman W. Flemer, of National Farm School, will talk on "The Care of Perennials," and Siegfried Putz, of the W. Atlee Burpee Company, will speak on "Care of Animals."

The commercial exhibitions that will be entered by a number of firms in this section will be unusually attractive, according to advance plans. John Andre, local rose grower, will have an exhibition of roses similar to those that will be sent to the Atlantic City flower show. Other exhibits have already been entered by Darlington's Greenhouses, Doylestown, W. Atlee Burpee Company, National Farm School, Park Valley Nurseries, Moon's Nurseries, and several others.

HERE AND THERE THRUOUT BUCKS COUNTY

Quakertown Borough Council Will Meet in Special Session to Consider Ordinance Which It Failed to Adopt at A Recent Meeting — Grangers Give Their Opinions on Influences Which Foster Peace.

QUAKERTOWN, Sept. 8.—Borough Council finds itself face to face with an obstacle which will likely be brought up at an adjourned meeting Wednesday evening. Some weeks previously an ordinance providing for the relocation of Beaver Run northward from the railroad to the borough limits was introduced. This ordinance was given its third reading but failed to become adopted because of a tie vote.

Certain members of Council favor the widening, straightening and relocation of Beaver Run, while others want to know the comparative costs between such a procedure and that of cleaning out the present course of the stream and whether or not any property damage might be entailed by such work.

It is alleged that this information was to have been furnished before the session last week, but since it was not

INTERESTING TASKS FACE ANNIVERSARY COMMITTEE

Seek Unpublished Letters of George Washington For Great Celebration

WONDER ABOUT PHOTO

Two interesting tasks confront the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, now planning the nationwide observance of the Two Hundredth Anniversary in 1932, of George Washington's Birth. One is to determine which portrait of George Washington, of the many in existence, bears the closest resemblance to the General, the other is to discover some heretofore unpublished original letters of Washington, many of which are known to be in existence. The first question is expected to be settled when the Portrait Committee of the Bicentennial Commission holds its next meeting this fall. The search for the unpublished letters of Washington will prove to be a more difficult task.

The painting of Washington which will be selected by the Portrait Committee will have the most extensive poster circulation ever accorded a picture. Thousands of copies will be printed and distributed. It will reach every corner of the United States and probably every corner of the world. Many of the publications to be issued by the George Washington Bicentennial Commission will include one of these portraits; every school-house will be presented with a copy; calendars, posters and window displays will have this picture as a feature. The necessity for a decision on the "best picture" is obvious.

Washington sat for as many as 21 artists. From these originals, hundreds of pictures were painted. Which is the best? Which bears the closest resemblance to the man himself? These are the questions the Portrait Committee must decide. Its verdict will undoubtedly be accepted by the whole country, not only for the present celebration but for generations to come.

The most popular portrait of Washington has always been the one executed by Gilbert Stuart. It has both dignity and elegance. The original, one of the best known pictures in the world, is now in the Boston Athenaeum. From this picture have been made millions of reprints and copies, some of the latter by the artist himself. While this picture has always been in popular fancy, there seems to be a growing demand for a picture of Washington which depicts him as a younger man—the Stuart picture was painted in 1796, only three years before Washington's death.

Other popular portraits are those by Charles Willson Peale, Rembrandt Peale, John Trumbull, James Sharples and Edward Savage. Each of these artists seems to have many followers who believe that their particular favorite best portrayed the subject. However that may be, the Portrait Committee will soon settle the question. Since the opinion thus reached will be that of leading artists and historians, it seems likely that it will be the final word.

The Portrait Committee which is to make this decision is composed of Dr. Leicester B. Holland, chief of the division of fine arts of the Library of Congress, chairman; Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission of the District of Columbia; Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick, manuscripts division, Library of Congress; Ezra Winter, Fine Arts Commission of New York; Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, Nurseries, and several others.

Mrs. Emma Fries entertained Mrs. Arthur States on Thursday afternoon. All members of the P. O. of A. Lodge, No. 313, are asked to be on hand at the meeting September 10th, as there will be a social time, after the meeting and plans will be made for a membership campaign.

Mrs. Forrest Jackson and daughter, Elaine, spent Friday visiting her sister, Mrs. Edward Weiss, of Philadelphia.

Miss Mary Dener, of Bristol, spent Wednesday and Thursday with her sister, Mrs. Billies, of Lowell avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cooper entertained their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Cooper, of Frankford.

Mrs. James Christian shopped in Philadelphia on Thursday.

On Friday and Saturday, Sept. 19th and 20th, the Cornwells Fire Company will hold its annual carnival at Cornwells avenue and Bristol Pike.

Elmer Vansand launched his boat "The Van," which he has been working on all summer, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Perkins entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Perkins, from New York, over the week-end.

WHITE RIBBONS HAVE THEIR 46TH CONVENTION

125 Officers, Delegates and Visitors Enjoyed Sessions at Dolington Hall

SPLENDID PROGRAMS

Bucks County white ribbons to the number of 125, officers, delegates and visitors, met on Saturday for their 46th annual convention in Dolington Hall, the headquarters of the Makefield Union.

Mrs. Lucy Harper, county president, in opening the morning session, expressed her gratification at the large attendance and cordially welcomed her faithful coworkers. After singing "Lead On, Oh King Eternal," Miss Emily Packer, evangelistic director, led thoughts of those present, to the need of deep spiritual thirst, if seekers would be thoroughly refreshed by the water of life. "As the heart pants after the water brooks, so thirsteth my soul after Thee, O God," and in the words of the Master, "Blessed are they who do hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." "Today in the rush of business and pleasure, this thirst is often stifled," said Miss Packer.

A greeting of welcome was extended by Mrs. Dora Balderston, of Makefield, to which Mrs. Eva Quinby, of Solebury, gave a pleasing response, citing an encouraging statement made to her very recently by a friend, "a man of affairs—but a man of worth," who said: "I admit enjoying a glass of beer and even a socktail; but why should I not deny myself this indulgence for the sake of the youth, the home, and the support of the law which is the finest enactment undertaken for the welfare of the nation?"

Reading of minutes of last convention at Trevoze, by Recording Secretary Mrs. Emma Woodman, reports of president, corresponding secretary and treasurer, were promptly dispatched. Some $1600 has passed through the treasurer's hands during the year. Election of officers followed, all present incumbents being retained. Delegates were named to state convention at Uniontown, October 17th to 21st. Bristol expects to send Mrs. George Ardrey and Miss Ella Mathias, the latter having served the local union as recording secretary for 13 years.

The noonday prayer was offered by Mrs. Yardley Stradling, after which Miss Marion Longshore, peace director, reported activities in this department: treasure chests filled by school children for the Philippines, of which Bristol sent six; Armistice Day observed by programs and prayer meetings; letters, and cablegrams sent to our representatives at the London Naval Conference, the result of which while a small step forward, is a definite move in the right direction, the very fact of the five great Powers meeting in conference being encouraging.

After lunch and meeting of executive committee, Rev. Amos Goddard, rector of St. Luke's church, Newtown, opened the afternoon session with prayer, followed by reading of executive recommendations. Next in order came five-minute reports of departments: child welfare and Bible schools by Mrs. Martha Van Doren, of Southampton; motion pictures, by Miss Anna Heritage, of Bristol; flower mission and relief and soldier and sailor work are combined in charge of Miss Alice Buckman, of Newtown, who told of cheer and good things dispensed in the way of delicacies, flowers for the sick, magazines for the seaman's institute, afghans, comfort kits, fruit, candy, literature, etc., for Mother

HARRY L. VASEY FATALLY HURT AS AUTO HITS TRUCK

Harrison Street Resident Was Driving Own Car and Was Alone at Time of The Accident

WAS ON WAY TO WORK

Deceased is Survived by His Wife and Two Children

(By International News Service)

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 8.—Harry L. Vasey, 45, 316 Harrison street, Bristol, Pa., died in the Princeton Hospital at 7.30 a. m. today of injuries received when his motor car ran into the rear of a motor transportation truck, near Monmouth Junction, N. J., about two hours earlier in the morning.

Vasey was following the truck and attempted to pass it and apparently misjudged the tail lights and hit one side of the truck to which was attached a trailer. His machine struck with such force that he was thrown thru the windshield of his car and fatally injured.

State Police investigated the accident and arrested the driver of the truck, Raymond Snow, of 132 Palms street, Riverside, N. J.

Snow was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Shepherd, of Adam's Station and held without bail pending a further investigation by Coroner H. K. Duvenport.

Snow was committed to the Middlesex County Jail while the body of the dead man was brought to a Trenton morgue.

According to the State Police at Trenton, N. J., who investigated the neck, Vasey's car hit the truck with considerable force and was wedged beneath it.

The owner of the truck is R. P. Hemphill, Sewell, N. J.

Harry L. Vasey has been a resident of Bristol for several years. He resides at the Harrison street address with his wife, who was Miss Edna McCoy previous to her marriage. He is employed as a construction engineer. Two children also survive.

Miss Camilla J. Kallenback Is Bride of Alfred Murray

On Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Miss Camilla Josephine Kallenback, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kallenback, of Fairview Lane, and Alfred R. Murray, son of Mrs. Louisa Murray, of Eddington, were united in marriage at St. Mark's rectory.

Miss Kallenback was attended by her sister, Miss Eleanor Kallenback, as bridesmaid, and Frank H. Early, of Eddington, was best man.

The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of ivory satin, made Grecian style, with v-shape neckline, trimmed with seed pearls, having long sleeves, shirring at the waist-line, and the long skirt featured the uneven hemline. She wore white satin slippers, white silk stockings and her veil of tulle in Madonna style was trimmed with lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid was attractive in a beige lace dress, made on straight lines, with v-shape neckline and skirt ending in the uneven hemline. Her satin slippers, stockings and lace cap matched her dress, and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow tea roses.

Following the marriage ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, which about fifty guests attended, and a dinner was served. The bridal table was attractively decorated with ferns at each end and a bouquet of gladioli in the center. A large wedding cake also occupied a prominent spot on the table.

The happy couple left Saturday evening for a honeymoon trip by motor to Canada. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Murray will reside in an apartment in Eddington. The bride's traveling costume was a black silk crepe dress made cape effect, trimmed with white. Her hat, slippers, gloves and handbag were also black and white.

Mrs. Murray was born in Philadelphia, but has been a resident of Bristol for the past twelve years. She graduated from St. Mark's Parochial School, class of 1925, and up to the time of her marriage, held a position as typist at the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. Mr. Murray is a native of Eddington, attended the Bensalem schools and Bristol high school. He is a mechanic and operates a garage in Eddington. Both Mr. and Mrs. Murray are very well known in this vicinity, and received many beautiful wedding gifts. Guests attending the wedding were from Philadelphia, Chester Springs, Glenside, Tacony, Holmesburg, Torresdale and Emilee.

TWO DICTATORSHIPS

It has been observed that there is a curious similarity between the outward manifestations of fascism and those of communism. Each was imposed upon a nation by a relatively small minority. Each proclaimed itself the defender of the people's liberties and promptly proceeded to destroy all liberty. Each has suppressed free speech and done everything possible to suppress free thought. Each has attempted to create prosperity by governmental fiat. Each has assumed the right to seize the property of capitalists and to compel the labor of proletarians.

But while their methods are obviously the same, no outsider has ever gone so far as to proclaim the identity of the aims of fascism and communism. That remained for Mussolini. He has done so:

"The present century will see a new form of economy—cooperative—as the nineteenth century experienced capitalistic economy."

Since a cooperative economy is the avowed objective of communism, the aims of the two systems seem to be the same. Fascism is, therefore, but communism by another name. But fascism rode into power in Italy over the prostrate body of the communism it had vanquished.

However, irrepressible old human nature somehow always manages to break up systems which depend upon the cooperation of all for the common good. Communism's beautiful dream has always been shattered by individual greed, ambition and disloyalty. Between fascism and the same goal lie the same obstacles, and it is doubtful whether Mussolini can hurdle them better than Lenin did.

COMMON SENSE NEEDED

Agitation is started periodically for a standardized code of signals for automobile drivers. The plan is to be recommended, surely. If anything needs standardization that has not already been reduced to that common plane, it is signals of automobile drivers. No two drivers have ever been known to employ the same signals.

But such a code of signals, however practical and standardized, cannot take the place of common sense, which every driver was supposed to have been endowed with at the beginning of his earthly career. The "supposed to have been" will be understood by every automobile driver.

Laws, regulations, codes, edicts can never compel an individual to do that which common sense ought teach him to do, but doesn't. A standardized code of automobile signals will not be hard to adopt; it will never be used by 90 per cent of automobile drivers.

Tragedy engulfed Jerry March's roommates Francis who married a fishy pick-up and found he was a fake and Constance who went off with David younger son of the owner of the department store where they were married. Jerry, a model with beauty and brains, shouldered their troubles as well as her own. She herself loved Tony Jardine. David's elder brother but she resented his dishonorable approach. When he apologized and begged for another chance Jerry repulsed him because of his brother's treatment of her friend. After seeing how Francis got back to her folks she devoted herself to nursing the ostracized Constance. Unknown to her Constance saw an announcement that a reception for David and his bride-to-be was to be broadcast that night. She persuaded Jerry to go for a ride once around the block with an old admirer. Then she turned on the radio.

CHAPTER 18

Listen in, folks!

"Fifth Avenue Tatter Speaking." The music which Jerry had heard in her way down faded away as Constance moved the dial breathlessly to VZB. She was just in time for the program. She hadn't missed a word that might add to her sorrow.

The voice continued: "I'm right in my element for all Fifth Avenue has moved to Long Island this evening. I wish I could picture to you his glorious view of the Jardine estate."

No listener-in on the air that night gave such an earnest, a religious attention to the announcer as Constance did. She could picture the "glorious view of the Jardine estate" as David had often described it—the terraces and the glimmer of the lake through the trees, the golden lights, the island on the water. She could hear the murmur of many voices in the background like the humming of bees on a sum-

"Oh, honey, what made you do it?" Jerry's day and the intermingling of faint music. Spell-bound, she sat on the edge of her chair and gazed at that mirage which filled the air before her.

"—and Mrs. Daniel Jardine, the charming hostess, is wearing a fuchsia colored creation by Pantolise. Mrs. Jardine is the mother of the groom-to-be."

"Mr. David Jardine, whose marriage to—"

At the mention of his name, Constance's trance was shattered. A flash of pain struck her like a bolt of lightning. She leaped forward, cutting off the radio, and stood there, panting, her eyes closed. No more! She would control herself; she would be sensible! She even took a few steps away, while the round indentation of the radio where the dials were placed gaped after her like a wondering face.

But the fascination that lures the suitor back to his victim, the rejected suitor back to the one who has allied heart-break, brought Constance back to the vicarious scene of her woe.

When she turned the knob again, the announcer had passed beyond David Jardine, and was giving particulars of the wedding. Constance listened, white-lipped. Every word wounded into her heart.

"As you know, this marriage, uniting two of the most popular members of the younger set, will take place at St. Thomas Church on Fifth Avenue."

Because her hands hurt from gripping the arms of the chair, Constance stumbled to a low stool and sat there. It was also closer to the radio. The voice was right in her ear now.

"Among the bridesmaids will be Miss Ann Parmelee. Mr. Tony Jardine will be his brother's best man."

Though the Fifth Avenue Tatter was careful not to make any comment, the emphasis he put on these names made it evident that he had coupled them for a special reason. Meanwhile, Joe and his Ford had a little over which should control which in turning the corner of the block. They almost ran into the curb. Jerry would have laughed more heartily if she had not been wondering what Constance could be doing now.

"Hurry! Hurry!" she insisted without quite knowing why.

Hurry! Hurry! It was a time for haste indeed. How quickly Jerry could have abandoned Joe to his fate and his Ford, how frantically she would have sped down the street under her own power if she could have had sight of Constance at this moment!

For Constance had bowed her head to her hands, while her body trembled as if under the lashes of a whip. "Ah! Here's the lovely bride-to-be, accompanied by her dance, Mr. David Jardine—"

"True-love, true-love, what have I done that you should treat me so?" The words of a popular song wailed out of the ether to weave themselves into the Fifth Avenue Tatter's announcement. The interference lasted only for a second; the words trailed away and his voice came through again with a brisk clarity. But in Constance's heart the tune sobbed on, over and over, and she added to it anguished words of her own. Oh, David! When you said that you loved me, when you said that you would never love anyone but me, how can you stand beside that girl, your bride-to-be, take her hand, look into her eyes in the midst of music and gaiety and congratulating friends, when I am alone, in a miserable little room, weeping in bitterest misery! How is it possible? Do you think of me—do you wonder whether I may be listening—and if you do—how is it that you can bear to go on with the show—that you do not drop that girl's arm and rush across a city to me? If I were I, David, I could never be gay while you were in despair!

So that, too, was a lie! So he had never really cared at all. His heart had been with that girl, Evelyn Woodforth, and now that he had won her, not a shadow darkened his happiness! His face was so entranced when he looked at her that other people noticed it—the announcer remarked on it! He had no thought—not one thought left for her, Constance—she had seen his face light up, too, when he was with her. She had believed—

Like a sleepwalker, she rose from her stool and moved across the room, the voice of the radio pursuing her.

"—and the bride-to-be is ravishly lovely in a snow-white chiton frock by Caollet—"

Why shouldn't she be ravishly lovely with David near her! I, Constance, am ugly now, my face is worn, my eyes are dull, because he's left me!

She had opened the bathroom door, but still the relentless voice surged after her.

"—and she is wearing a white broadened wrap trimmed with broad bands of chinchilla and the only jewels she is wearing are pearls, the gift of her fiancé—"

Hurry, hurry, Jerry! You were in time once, but now—

The Ford, in spite of every vicissitude, actually drew up at the curb. Jerry sprang out at once.

"Well, I didn't kill you, did I?" demanded Joe.

"Not quite—that's the best roller coaster ride I've even been on—Thanks, Joe."

"Wait a second, Jerry," he begged, and leaning out of the car window, he seized her hand and delayed her.

"I really got to go, Joe—"

"But say—Jerry—you do like the car, don't you?"

His wistful face made Jerry say impulsively, "Sure, but it's not as nice as you are, Joe. You're a darling!" Then she dashed up the house steps as fast as she could go, leaving Joe to entreat her receding back. "Aw, gee, Jerry—"

The radio was still going. Jerry heard it, coming up the stairs and felt better. The words were indistinguishable till she opened the door.

"Myriads of colored lights are now playing on the fountains—crowds are gathered in the gardens—everybody is laughing and happy—"

Gardens? Must be some musical comedy or opera. "Connie," she sang out, her hand on the door-knob. "Connie, you'll die laughing when I tell you about Joe and his Ford!"

Where was Constance?

The radio went right on: "You can hear the music playing—hundreds of couples are dancing around the pools and fountains—the beau monde has gathered in the idyllic surroundings here at Soundview—"

Jerry paused, in amazement and sudden fright.

"—for this reception tonight in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Evelyn Woodforth and Mr. David Jardine—"

Listening no longer, Jerry cried out sharply, "Connie!"

Still she could not believe that—that she didn't know what to believe. Running into the kitchenette, her voice rose in a hysterical cry, "Connie! Connie!"

No one in the kitchenette. No response to her call.

From the radio—"whose wedding next week will be the first and most impressive event of the fall season—"

There remained only the bathroom. In a frantic rush, Jerry burst open the door. Fortunately, it had not been locked.

"Connie!"

There, at last, was Connie, or a bundle of clothes and limp, moaning flesh that had been Connie, lying on the floor, eyes closed—moaning—moaning—

"Connie! What is it? What have you done?" shrieked Jerry as she dropped to her knees beside her friend.

She took the yielding body in her arms. Connie's eyes did not open, and her breath came with the faintest of tremors. The bottle marked with the warning druggist's label a black ink, "POISON" lay empty on the floor. A few drops had oozed out and stained the tiles.

"Oh, honey, what made you do it? What made you do it?"

Connie's lips were black, burned. The incessant, low, penetrating moan—

"I'll get a doctor, darling," Jerry cried to the prone body, "you'll be all right—you'll be!"

As she fled through the living room the radio persisted with a ban malignancy—Miss Woodforth is one of the most popular members of the Junior League—and was promising last year in—

MULHOLLAND REPLIES TO EMILIE CHALLENGE

Editor, Courier.

Sir:—As manager of the Federals baseball club, champions of the Bristol Twilight League, I wish to say in regard to Manager Shoemaker's statement, saying our club was not of championship calibre, I am willing to play his club and show him what our team can do, also turn the entire proceeds of the game over to charity or play them winner take all. I also say there are three teams in the twilight league that can defeat Emilie, namely, A. O. H., Independents and the Federals. Our club defeated Cornwells last Sunday, a club that can spot Emilie five runs and trim them. Now, in regard to Emilie defeating Bristol A. A., that was the first game the local club played together, not having any practice, just picking up nine men to do Manager Shoemaker a favor when he was stuck for a game. He owes my club a return game in Bristol which he promised and has not played yet. Mr. Shoemaker is trying to dodge our club, saying he will play us with the Emilie Juniors. Why, the Emilie Y. M. A. is a better balanced club than his all-star cast, taking man for man:

Dietrick is a better catcher than Afterbach or any other catcher in Bucks county; Black, his pitcher, can't compare with DeRisi, Lawler, Kohler, W. Fine or Jones (any of these boys would set Emilie crazy); Bruce, their first baseman, cannot be compared with David, who works out with the Phils every day. Why, DeRisi pitching to Bruce this season fanned him time after time. I don't believe he got a hit off him this season. McDevitt can bat and field all around Schoenfeld; Duster and Comly are not in the same class with Wilkin and Dugan; while the outfield, outside of Watson who is Emilie's best man, is not in the class with Barrett, Cooper, Cochran and Riola.

Now, when it comes to class, why those clubs that played Emilie were just set-ups. He can't tell me how good they are because I know all of them. So Manager Shoemaker wants to wake up and return the favor that I did for him when he promised to bring his club to Bristol. Last season his club dodged our club, so when we played Tullytown he padded them up to defeat our club, but he got fooled sending Afterbach and Duster and Bruce to pad up the Tullytown team, knowing that if my club was defeated his mind would be at rest. It's pretty hard to defeat my club when I get them on the war-path. So come out in the open and show the sporting public what your club can do. The Phils defeated the Athletics in the spring, but cannot do it in the fall.

So here's hoping your club will play the Federals, and you can rest assured of what I say will come true.

Hoping to meet your club in a series of three games, I remain,

Yours in sport,

JOHN A. MULHOLLAND,
Manager, Bristol Federals.

Interesting Tasks Face
Anniversary Committee

historian, Cambridge, Mass.; Colonel Harrison H. Dodge, superintendent of Mount Vernon; and Gari Melcher, artist, of Falmouth, Virginia.

The second task facing the George Washington Bicentennial Commission is, in a way, the more difficult. By a specific act Congress authorized the publication of Washington's writings. Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick of the Library of Congress, one of the foremost authorities on Washington and his time, has been selected to edit this work. When completed these writings will form a Congressional Memorial of the United States to the Nation's most revered son.

While there is sufficient original material in the archives of the Library of Congress for 25 volumes, there are still many letters extant which have never been published. These "hidden" letters the associate directors of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3rd, and Representative Sol Bloom of New York, are making every effort to obtain.

Washington was a diligent and prolific writer. In his habitually frank manner, he expressed his views and ideals on the leading problems of his day. The person who wants to understand Washington must go to his writings—his papers, journals, diaries and letters. Washington has left a more authentic picture of himself through his writings than is to be found in any of the hundreds of his biographies which have been written since his death.

The writings of Washington which are being compiled in connection with the Two Hundredth Anniversary of his Birth, will remain the fullest available Washington for many years. The undertaking was made possible only by the financial provision of the United States Government. Such an enterprise may never again be attempted. It is because of these facts that the Commissioners are desirous of making this compilation as complete as possible.

Dr. Fitzpatrick estimates that only one half of Washington's letters have been published in the 131 years since the General's death. Where are the remaining letters? Undoubtedly many of them have been destroyed, some wilfully and some through carelessness. But there are still many unpublished letters of Washington in existence. These the Associate Directors of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission are anxious to see.

Many of these letters are in the possession of people who do not realize their historical value. Every now and then a document is discovered in a most remote place and usually by accident. Because of the Westward movement after the Revolutionary War, these letters have been scattered throughout the United States. Also, because of the keen interest in Washington which has been taken by collectors and scholars, some letters have found their way into Europe and even Australia. An unpublished letter is likely to turn up at any moment in any part of the world.

The George Washington Bicentennial Commission does not ask any one to part with the original copies of such documents. It merely requests the privilege of examining such letters and, if found authentic, to be permitted to make reprints of them. Every effort is being made by the Commission to locate such letters in order, to use the words of Associate Director U. S. Grant 3rd, "to present to all Americans a composite picture of the Father of His Country through his writings—his physical appearance, his thoughts and actions, and his ideals."

Compulsory Education
Arranged by Soviets

larily, the struggles of the world proletariat for freedom will be their only instruction in world history.

The preparation of teachers for these schools is an enormous task. They must be chosen primarily on a basis of their sound Marxist training and political loyalty to the Soviet government. The lure of high paid technical jobs in the city factories has filled the technical courses in the higher schools to overflowing and left empty the pedagogical courses, with the prospect of a low paid teaching post in a small provincial town. Commissar Bubnov stated that there are 300,000 elementary school teachers in the Soviet Union who are inspired with enthusiasm for the task of teaching socialist construction. Their number is inadequate and every effort is being made to increase it.

The Commissariat of Education will spend an average of 68 rubles this year for each child in the elementary schools. In addition an enormous sum is needed for the construction and equipment of new school buildings. Most of the city schools are running two and even three shifts. In many villages the confiscated homes of the richer peasants have been turned into temporary schools.

tron of honor's bouquet was pink roses and baby breath, while the bridesmaids carried bouquets of deep pink roses and baby breath.

The best man was Joseph Irwin, of Red Bank, a former room-mate of Mr. Hibbs' at Rutgers College. The ushers were Hugh Curtright, of Flushing, L. I., William Thompson, of Allentown, N. J., Jerome Burbank, of Upper Montclair, and James Palmer, of Gainsville, Ga.

The bride's and groom's gifts to each other were white gold wrist watches. The bride's gifts to her attendants were French evening bags, and the groom's gifts to the best man and his ushers were silver desk cigarette lighters.

The bride's mother was gowned in pink silk lace trimmed with coral bows of velvet, pink slippers and stockings to match. The groom's mother wore black georgette with slippers and stockings to match. Both wore a corsage bouquet of pink rosebuds.

As the bridal party departed from the church, Mendelsohn's wedding march was played. A reception was held at the Plaza Hotel Jersey City, where a full course dinner was served, covers being laid for one hundred guests. Pink rosebuds and ferns were the decorations on the bridal table; while on the guests' tables were glad-oli and ferns. A beautifully decorated three tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride. An orchestra furnished music for dancing.

The bride and groom left during the evening for a honeymoon which will be spent on a motor trip through Massachusetts and Canada. Mrs. Hibbs wore for her traveling costume a brown duveten suit with matching accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Hibbs will reside at 52 College avenue, Tarrytown, N. Y.

The bride, who was born in Bayonne, is a graduate of the Bayonne High School and the New Jersey College for Women of New Brunswick. The groom is a native of Bristol, attended the public schools, and graduated from Pennington Preparatory School and Rutgers College, New Brunswick. At the present time, Mr. Hibbs is head coach and instructor of English at the Irving School for Boys at Tarrytown, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Hibbs were recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts.

Guests attending the wedding were from New York, Tarrytown, Brooklyn, Ocean Grove, Plainfield, Bonton, Bloomfield, Allentown, Paterson, Passaic, Ridgewood, East Orange, Keyport, Red Bank and Elizabeth, N. J.

Moore's "boys," many of whom were entertained the past summer at a picnic supper by Makefield Union and others.

Mrs. Cadwalader, of Warrington, reported for "Temperance Light Bearers," the little tots whose mothers enroll them with the promise of sowing the first seeds of temperance truth, until they are old enough for the L. T. L., the latter in charge of Mrs. Ella M. Tomlinson, of Wrightstown, who reported that the present plan of organizing the Legions in the schools is more effective than the former way of special meetings. After a delightful solo by Mrs. Rockafellow were given the reports of Social Morality by Miss Sarah Wilson; publicity, Mrs. Margaret Lownes; Mrs. Emma Cox, of Union Signal subscriptions; several unions reporting gains; Mrs. Myrtle Kester, in charge of Christian Citizenship and Legislation, reported good work done by locals during spring primary campaign, and urged the necessity of being on the alert for every possible dry vote to combat the activities of the enemy in the coming election.

After a beautiful piano solo and encore by Mrs. Walter Buniss, Miss Packer reported leaflets and Testaments distributed in large numbers.

Mrs. Finney, of Richboro, in charge of scientific temperance instruction, exhibited posters showing very clever work by the children. The prize essay in the "Value of Total Abstinence in Business," was read by the author, Louise Traub, of Makefield, for which a prize of $5.00 was given. $15 also was distributed among the other prize winners.

Miss Gladys Harper reported a new

Y. P. B. organized at Langhorne and the others in fine condition.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, president of Georgia W. C. T. U., addressed the evening meeting.
